2016 Dealmaker

Everyone loves a deal! This wine comes from my passion to find wines that over deliver and won't hurt my wallet. One that shows the essence of what Jeff Cohn Cellars wines are all about; producing the best wines with a sense of place, from some of the finest vineyards in Sonoma County and beyond. I was able to source old vine vineyard fruit from growers who have the same vision I have. This partnership of winemaker and grower has allowed me to produce exactly what I was looking for. A great wine for Monday night, and yes, the rest of the week too! To me, that's a deal we can shake on.

WINE ENTHUSIAST.

91 Pts Big but smooth, this full-flavored wine layers tasty blackberry and black cherry over hints of vanilla, mint and dark chocolate for a complex and enticing character overall. It is full bodied, moderately tannic and well balanced on a big scale. Jeff Cohn made it with 80% Zinfandel and 20% Petite Sirah, so it could have been labeled as Zin.

90 Pts If you find a better Zinfandel for $20, rush out and buy it, but, until then, rush out and grab this one. It is, in almost all ways, part and parcel of the mishpocha (look it up; it's a good word to know) save for the fact that Cohn has moderated its tannins and ripeness while not giving up much of his trademark depth and clear varietal focus. It is on the direct, juicy, drink-me-now side yet will certainly deliver well if allowed to age for bit. And one could do worse than putting a supply of this tasty wine aside. It is a real steal in high quality Zin. Reviewed: January 2019
