2016 Nun's Canyon Vineyard Sonoma Valley Zinfandel

The 60 to 80 year old vines from Nun's Canyon produce a Zinfandel with some Grenache-like attributes. The skeletal Red Hill clay loam gives the wine a richness on the palate. These head trained vines are believed to be Italian planted vineyards so the actual selection or clone is not known. At 1400 ft. elevation, the fruit paves the way for a wine that is more reminiscent of a Southern Rhône in both aromatics and texture. The resulting wine is very lush, opulent and elegant but with the bramble of Zinfandel.

WINE ENTHUSIAST.

94 Pts Herbal and leathery, this impressive wine delights in aromas of white pepper, tar and meat. Robustly textured with full-bodied ripeness, it offers savory exoticism that's hard to resist. It was aged in 25% new French oak.

91 pts The highly concentrated fruit in this wine keeps coming and coming from first sniff to lasting, slurpy aftertaste, and while there is a certain extra bit of fleshiness to its texture, the wine is sure to please with savory foods ranging from Italian sausage sautéed with peppers and onions to lamb stew. And, despite cellaring being an option, the wine will stand up to full-flavored dishes from day one. Reviewed: January 2019
