2016 Broken Compass Saitone Vineyard, Russian River Valley Carignane

Saitone is one of the oldest vineyards out on the Olivet Road region of the Russian River Valley planted in 1895 by Antonio Saitone and honoring its heritage through dry farming and sustainable practices is part of the commitment to preserving its legacy.

The Huchica loam soil brings depth to this variety without being overly heavy. It seems to tame the Carignane and bring a zen-like component to the grapes through higher acid levels. Flavors of cranberry, and raspberry shine through with a very spicy bramble component and layered complexity.

An incredible, saturated red / purple color stains the glass. Candied red and black fruits and savory notes are intertwined with warm cinnamon stick and mission fig. The palate is more focused on a crunchy cranberry, fig and dark chocolate cover blood orange. A truly sensational experience!

90 Pts WINE ENTHUSIAST.

From a well-known old-vine site for Zinfandel, this wine shows the prowess of other varieties within its ground. Thick, leathery and tart, it retains plenty of acidity within a core of full-powered earth and stems. The richness is complemented by seasonings of white and black pepper.
